

The war that Made America - Part 3 Notes

Who did the British choose to lead the war in North America? Why did they need a change in leadership?

How is the war in North America part of a much larger story by 1758?

What would determine victory in North America?

What are Washington's orders? How does he feel about them?

What does the video mean about "the handicap of being an American"? Is Washington able to overcome this?

After failing to get his commission in the British army what does Washington do?

What disagreement do colonial assemblies have with the British Government regarding paying for the war?

How do Prime Minister William Pitt's actions please the Americans?

How does Montcalm plan to defend Fort Carillon/Ticonderoga against Abercrombie and the massive British Assault?
What is the outcome at Ticonderoga?

Even in Victory, why is Montcalm concerned?

Why are the losses at Fort Frontenac and Louisburg critical blows for the French?

What was the fate of captive Suzanna Johnson? Why did natives take captives like her?

How is French corruption a problem?

What was the response to Montcalm's request for more troops? What is meant by the quote "when the house is on fire one can not concern oneself with the stable"?

Why do the French have a difficult time keeping Indian allies?

What is General Forbes plan to capture the Forks of the Ohio and Fort Duquesne?

What agreement is made in the Treaty of Easton?

What does the "friendly fire" incident near Fort Ligonier show about George Washington?

Having finally achieved his goals, what does Washington turn his attention to?